Many of the farmers of this section are contemplating the naming of their farms. By all means, give the home-place a name. Select a name suitable for the location; but let it have dignity. For instance "Clover Blossoms" may sound sweet but "Clover Dale," or "Clover Hill," is more dignified. Bonny Brook sounds well if a pretty little stream flows near; but "Frog Hollow" does not look well in print. If large trees abound, "The Oaks" might describe it; but "Possum Hill" might embarrass you in case the Governor called to see you. If great cliffs are near, "Cliffs," "The Cliffs," or, "The Crags," would sound well; but "Buzzards Roost" would be awful! If a fine view is to be had, say so in suitable terms but "Lazy Man's Rest" would be too suggestive.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building-tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

Engagement Announcement.

A late copy of an Ambridge newspaper tells how they announce engagements out in the western part of the State. The groom-to-be is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Mellott, of Sipes Mill, this county.

"An interesting social event of the week was the dinner given by Miss Beulah Thompson assisted by several friends at the home of Miss Thompson, Maplewood Avenue and Seventh Street at which the engagement of Miss Anna Clark to Dr. A. N. Mellott, was announced.

The event was most beautiful in all its appointments.

"The decorations were pink and white, a feature of the decorations being pink and white cupids suspended from the chandeliers. In the center of the table was a pink tissue paper bridal pie decorated with pink roses, with pink streamers extending to each plate. At the end of the luncheon each guest drew by means of the ribbon a favor of the evening.

"The place cards were adorned with pink and white cupids and the announcement cards were pink and white hearts pierced with a dart and bearing the names of Miss Clark and Dr. Mellott. At each plate was a pink basket filled with forget-me-nots.

On entering the dining room the guests were greeted by Miss Clark who stood at the head of the table wearing the telltale diamond. During the evening each guest flattered a tea towel and embroidered her initials on it giving it to the bride to be as a remembrance of the evening. During the evening each guest was given the following list of questions to answer, some of the answers being quite amusing.

- 1. Describe your intended husband.
2. What conditions are most favorable for a proposal?
3. What should a bride take on her honeymoon?
4. What trait of character would you admire most in a husband?
5. Should a girl propose and when?
6. Do you believe in long engagements? Why?
7. At what age should a girl marry?
8. What is the latest hour an intended should keep?
9. Give your opinion about spooning.
10. There were twenty young ladies present.
11. Miss Clark is one of Ambridge's best known and most estimable young ladies. She is teacher of the First grade in the Harmony Township Building. Dr. Mellott is one of the county's rising young physicians.

VICTIM OF CRUEL DECEPTION

Plaintiff's Explanation No Doubt Aroused Considerable Sympathy in the Judge.

Of the many excellent stories Judge Bodkin tells in his reminiscences perhaps the most amusing is that concerning a case in which the famous Sergeant Armstrong appeared for the defendant against a plaintiff who sought to recover a certain debt. The latter, a most respectable old gentleman, clearly proved the debt, and the sergeant rose to examine him.

"Without a word he handed the witness a sheet of blue paper with writing and an obliterated stamp upon it.

"The witness just glanced at the document, then silently handed it back to the sergeant. Still without a word he took off his spectacles, put them in their case, the case in his pocket, picked up his hat and began to move unobtrusively out of the witness box.

"What's all this, what's all this?" queried the bewildered judge.

"Only the gentleman's receipt in full for the amount claimed," said the sergeant.

"The plaintiff, half out of the witness box, turned to the judge with the air of a man who has been cruelly misled.

"I take my solemn oath, my lord," he said, earnestly, "I never would have brought the action but that I was led to believe that the receipt was burned."

TO REMOVE STAINS OF INK

Information That is Worth Being Made a Matter of Household Record.

One of the most maddening stains is that of ink. The time-honored remedy for fresh ink is milk, and many a good table cover, handkerchief or blouse has been saved for future usefulness by placing the stained portion in milk and allowing it to stand. As soon as the milk becomes discolored pour it off and put on fresh.

Where there is no color to fade an ink stain may be removed by pouring a ten per cent solution of oxalic acid on the stain and letting it stand a few minutes before rinsing. This should be repeated until the stain disappears. The last rinsing should be in water to which borax or ammonia has been added, says an exchange. If the ink is dry and well set it is hard to remove, but in most cases it will yield to an application of salt and lemon juice or to javelle water diluted by the same amount of boiling water.
